Dear Rolf:

The enclosed note to you from the Information and Privacy Coordinator was on my desk when I returned from the west coast last Friday. I hope that the one document (ORE 41-49, attached to the note) is of some interest to you. It is disappointing that no other material relevant to your research has been previously released, but Larry Strawderman assured me that his staff had closely checked their computer records. As we discussed, however, some material released in the early days of the Freedom of Information Act was not entered in the computer records. If you find any references to previously released material that you would like to order, you can use the same procedure; let me know if I can help with this.
